Multnomah County Commissioner

Jessica Vega Pederson

Friends and Neighbors,

For the last two and a half years I have had the honor of representing you on the Multnomah County Board of Commissioners. Since taking office, I've worked hard to tackle the challenges facing our community, while also building up a vision of what our community can be. While we've faced many challenges both locally and at the national level, I have never been more optimistic about the future of our community.

I want to take this opportunity to update you on the work I am doing as your Commissioner, particularly in the areas of early learning, transportation, and housing and homelessness – the issues I'm particularly focused on.

Also provided is important information on Multnomah County services, since the work we do - from libraries to land use, from social services to animal services, and from jail operations to bridge operations – is expansive and, yes, confusing.

This is also an invitation for you to share your thoughts and concerns with me. What are we doing well, what are we doing wrong, and how can we better work together? You can find information within on contacting my office and joining me to share your thoughts in person.

Sincerely,

Accomplishments and Priorities

Housing and Homelessness

We at Multnomah County continue to prioritize funding for the housing and homelessness crisis. We've increased shelter beds to get folks off the streets and we are working to expand the mental health and addiction treatment services people need to remain in stable housing.

Neighbors throughout Portland are stepping up to help. After objections were raised about the planned shelter at SE 61st and Foster, I led an 8-month steering committee process that developed a good neighbor agreement for the shelter that was unanimously accepted by members of the committee. We've also successfully opened the Wy'east Shelter on SE 122nd, where local neighbors hosted a BBQ last year to welcome new residents. Lilac Meadows, a family shelter, opened its doors this spring.

Transportation

As an east Portland resident, I am acutely aware of the transportation needs of our community. Large swaths of east Portland lack sidewalks, regular transit service, and transportation options. That's why I am excited to serve as co-chair of Metro's 2020 Transportation Funding Task Force, which is crafting the outlines of a potential funding measure that could be referred to voters in 2020. My focus remains on enhancing transit options, reducing our carbon footprint, and improving safety and reliability.

I also continue to serve as the co-chair of the Earthquake Ready Burnside Bridge project, the goal of which is to ensure we have an emergency lifeline over the river after a major earthquake.

Sustainability

In 2017 we pledged to transition to 100% renewable energy by 2050. Since then, we've convened a series of forums to conduct deep dives into the details of this transition. We've also started a conversation with the environmental justice community to ensure that the benefits of this new economy are shared by those most impacted by climate change.

Early Learning

Over the last year I have had the privilege of leading the Multnomah County Preschool for All Task Force. Made up of education advocates, school superintendents, business leaders, and community representatives, the task force has been developing a plan to ensure every child in our community has access to a quality preschool education.

In addition, I am serving on the Portland Children's Levy Allocation Committee, which provides grant funding to programs that support children and youth.
